

Perforations

Last meeting found us sorting through the second of five boxes of donated philatelic materials - primarily First Day Covers.

No "Ice Box" covers here, but a lot of nice stuff was found.

This month we will have a guest speaker, David McKay, Feet First Museum coordinator at the Scholl Museum inside Rosalind Franklin University of Medicine and Science in North Chicago, will talk about "The Devil's Mail: Terrorists, Assassinations, Hijackings, Letter Bombs and More" exhibit currently on display at the museum.

Excerpts from the article appearing in the Lake County News-Sun, 12 October issue can be found below.

"The Devil's Mail: Terrorists, Assassinations, Hijackings, Letter Bombs and More" will be exhibited through Nov. 6 at the Feet First Museum in the Dr. William M. Scholl College of Podiatric Medicine at the university, 3333 Green Bay Road.

The exhibit earned a gold medal at last year's International Stamp Show and features 30 envelope "covers" -- envelopes that have been stamped by a post office -- from the United States and around the world that survived planes that were exploded, trains that were hijacked and blasts of radiation -- an antidote to anthrax.

Dr. Stephen Berlin, the Maryland podiatric surgeon and philatelist who owns the collection, took an interest in stamps when he was 12 and eventually began purchasing covers delivered in unusual and historic modes: by dog sled, balloon, pigeon carrier and Pony Express. He cultivated an interest in mail damaged by natural disaster: earthquakes, floods, hurricanes and disease, noting that in the 18th and 19th centuries mail was fumigated and quarantined for cholera and bubonic plague.

Berlin was also intrigued by pieces molested by man-made disasters, including terrorist attacks. The exhibit includes a 1979 cover from a mailbag carried aboard American Airlines Flight 444, which made an emergency landing after a mail bomb attack. It was later discovered that the mail bomb was the work of "Unabomber" Ted Kaczynski and could have destroyed the Boeing 727 had it worked correctly.

"The exhibit gives insight into what's going on around the world and the dangers -- I would call them radical dangers -- of the postal service," Berlin said.
